States:

Conscious that millions of loyal hearts are saddened by temporary defeat, I bag to offer a word of hope and encouragement. No cense ever had supporters more brave, samest and devoted than those who have espoused the cause of bimestallism. They have fought from sourietion and have fought with all the zeal which conviction inspires. Eveniss will prove whether they are right or wrong. Here they are right or wrong. Here they are right or great. The Republican enadigate has been heralded as the advances agent of prosperity. If he publicas bring real prosperity to the American people, shoes who opposed him will share in that prosperity. If, on the other hand, his policies prove an injury to the people generally, those of his supporters when do not heleng to Couscious that millions of loyal

The Parting Stone.

The oid "parting stone" at the corner of Center and Roxbury streets in Roxbury will soon be removed. The "parting stone" is one of the most interesting landmarks in Roxbury. It stood on Elder Heath's lane (which was that part of Roxbury street north of the First Parish church), toward the Great pond leading to Dedham. It was afterwards called Dedham road, and, afterwards called Dedham troad, and, afterwards called Dedham troad, and, afterwards called Dedham towards in Eliot square to the Dedham line, and was formerly the great artery connecting the northern and southern portions of the town, so continuing until the Dedham turnplies was constructed. Originally an iron shaft was inserted in the stone, having a toward to the stone of the support of a street lamp. Some years age this was removed. On the northerly side of the stone it directs on the stone of the English Tailors Fear That I s Doom Has Been Fixed.

It would appear from one of their trade organs that tailors are becoming a little anxious about the prospects of the black coat of civilization. They fear that It is in danger of boing supersuded by a garment of lighter diffe. If not of a variegated patient. Perhaps, if they ware to give voice to the deeper appealansions, they would say that there was more at stake than the black coat. There can, at any rate, be little doubt, whether the tailors are efficient to be a supersumed to the supersumer of the supersumer do their best to accelerate the cata-strophe. Animated by the restless spirit of the age, its impatience of sobriety and its thirst for change and color in costume as in life, there is a school of so-called reformers who are endeavoring to urgo the wearers of black costs to revolt. Lot them give free play, exclaim these anar-clistic counselors, to "their taste in checks and stripes," and they will be able to cut a far more fic-turesque figure at a far smaller an-nual outlay. With the outlay, of course, the public is not concerned, though that matter, doubtless, is not without its interest for the fallors; but we own to some measithough that matter, doubtless, is not without its interest for the tailors; but we own to some uneasimess at the idee of the entire community indulging its multifarious taste in checks and stripes in a headlong pursuit of the picturesque. We have all of us, indeed, seen the experiment tried under very favorable circumstances, but with more than dublous results, by those little bands of vocal and instrumental artists, generally six or eight in number, who are usually to be met with at race meetings or on the sands of popular scaside resorts it this time of the year. These pioneers of dress reform have entirely discarded the black cost, preferring one of a gayer color, with notheably elongated tails, and the freedom with which they indulge their tasts in checks and surject may almost be, said to border upor the control of the said of the control of th

CHILDREN'S OUESTIONING.

The Child's Natural Method of Ac-quiring Knowledgs.

On the other hand, many of his questions cannot be connected with his reading, but appear to result from reasoning or a recognized analogy. "How do plants make themselves bigger when they grow?" from reasoning or a recognized analogy. "How do plants make themsolves bigger when they grow?" he asked when we were talking about planting his garden. I heard him saying to himself: "Wildless, wildlesa." I asked him what he was talking about, and he replied: "About plants that are not wild. What are they called?" "Garden or cultivated plants," I answered. "What made you say wildless?", "Why," said he, "I knew that hapmless meant something that wouldn't do any harm, and so wildless means plants that are not wild. "He mentioned the fall, and I asked him what he meant by fall. He replied what he meant by fall. He replied to the property of the said. The said was allowed the said of the property of the said: "When God puts the skin on people, is that skinning them?" I once read of the people in the moon being like grass-hoppers, and told him about it. When I had finished the story, he said: "When we coke up in the sky we see the moon rolling along above us, and when the people in the moon look up in the sky two see the moon rolling along above them. What is the strange puzie about that?" I told him that his specimen of mica was silicate of potesh, and he asked: "Thy is mica silicate of potash? Because they put ashes in a pot?" These questions have been dear the range of thought and the variety of reasonings that a child under six years of age may have. They show his natural method of acquiring knowledge; but they can only suggest the ceaseless activity of his mind during all his waking hours.—Henry L. Clapp, in Appletons' Popular Science Monthly.

Part of the svi dence for the decises we agiven by a widow who mistook the accused for her dead husband, stuck to him all sprough his trial for making a false pension claim, and could hardly be brought to believe him an imposter even after he had been convicted.

William Newby lived in White county at the begrissing of the war, the enlisted and was sent to the front. After an interval friends returned to White county and told Mrs. Newby her husband had been the bartle of Shibot, and they had assisted at his burial.

A few years ago s man cases to Mrs. Newby's home and permanded the bear wounded at Shibot, had lost his bert hat he was Newby, that he had been wounded at Shibot, had lost his bear that he was Newby, that he had been wounded at Shibot, had lost his bear and friends. He had come is himself after years of wandering and had returned to his home. The aman her friends and seen buried, he said, was not Newby, but a mass whe resembled him.
